W. D. Blaisdell has returned to his home in Burlington, after passing a few days with friends in Barre.
Mr. and Mrs. Murray A. Love of Highland avenue are passing some time in camp at Lake Umbagog, Hinesburg.
Forley Grimes has returned to his home in North Hero, after having been called to Barre by the death of his brother, Weldon Grimes.

Edward Jackson, who is employed in Springfield, Mass., arrived in the city yesterday for a visit in the home of Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Jackson of South Main street.

Summarized copies of the revised fish and game laws have been received at the city clerk's office to-day and any person holding a license may receive a copy on application.

Miss Alice Douglass, who has been passing 10 days with friends in the city, returned last night to her home in Post Mills. She was accompanied by Miss Alice Farnham of Camp street.

Among the business visitors in town yesterday were: John Sheldon of Woodsville, N. H., Frank Murphy of East Barre, Mrs. M. A. Cone of North Randolph, Dr. Cross of Williamstown and Leslie MacIver of Graniteville.

Elton E. Barrett, who has been passing a vacation of a week with friends in Barre and vicinity, returned to-day to Lowell, Mass., where, with Walter Boutwell, formerly of this city, he is employed in the grocery store of the latter's uncle.

After having been detained at police headquarters during the day while arranging to pay a fine of $50 and costs imposed for peddling without a state license, Henry Poir discharged his obligation to city court last night and was released.

James Rhind of Washington street is disposing of his household goods preparatory to moving his family to Hartford, Conn., there to join his daughters, Mrs. William Bippus, and Miss Gladys Rhind, the latter having gone to Hartford soon after school closed in June.

At the West Second street meadow off North Main street this afternoon a number of young men in the north end will raise a flag, a 40-foot pole having been erected during the week. Because of the quarantine on public gatherings a short program originally planned in connection with the ceremony will be dispensed with and only a committee will be present to see the flag take the breeze.

George D. Troup announces that he has secured the services of an expert photographer, C. E. Ayers, to take charge of the photographic department of his business, which will assure his patrons prompt and efficient service in this department and will enable Mr. Troup to devote all his skill and undivided energy to his rapidly growing business in monumental air-brush designing. Mr. Troup is now preparing to promptly furnish the trade with original, snappy, quick-selling monumental designs, and to give his patrons prompt, expert and courteous service in any branch of photography.—adv.

Now that the new stonecrafter near Young Bros' shed is in working order, the street department is centering much of its energy on the permanent street work along North Main street and during the past week a strip of cement roadway extending from the paving terminal near Blackwell street as far north as J. D. Ossola's residence has been built. The work is in charge of Supt. A. G. Perry and before the appropriation of $7,300, which includes the state aid money advanced for permanent highway, has been expended it is expected that the cement will be extended as far north as the Berlin street extension. The road is 18 feet wide and is being laid in squares. Near the bridge at the south end of the cement asphalt is being laid between the cement and the track of the B. & M. T. & P. Co. The use of cement on such a large scale is something of an experiment with local road builders and is being watched with interest by many people.

Small poultry breeders in Barre are hard hit by high prices of corn and while there is little probability that enough amateur poultry men will be discouraged to rid the town of chancier's morning reminder, the cost of fowling will doubtless eliminate many chicken farmers before the winter unless the food conferences at Washington, D. C., afford the desired relief. Corn suitable for chicken feed has nearly doubled within a comparatively few months and dealers admit that eggs and chicken meat are cheap in comparison with the advanced cost of feed. Hoover's arguments for substituting corn meal for wheat do not furnish much consolation for chicken breeders, as it is reasoned that corn for human beings will increase the price of corn for fowls. If it develops that the 1917 corn crop is a bumper one, however, and Congress succeeds in regulating the price of foodstuffs, poultry growers hereabouts may be depended upon to stick it out.

As the summer wears on and approaches its wane the impression grows among the police authorities of Barre that the 1917 legislative enactment regulating the glare of automobile headlights is much more honored in the breach than in the observance. An adequate idea of how much the law has fallen into disrespect may be gained on almost any evening and as a result of an investigation by the state's attorney's department it is probable that prosecutions may follow unless there is more of a disposition to comply with the law. Many motorists have made shift to meet the requirements of the law. Some of them have succeeded where others, with equally honest attention, have failed because the "blinders" used do not have the effect of subduing the headlights. Almost any night anyone who observes auto traffic up and down North Main street in Barre may note that some motorists still carry the old blinding headlights and have made no attempt to control the glare of their lights. State's Atty. Earle S. Davis has issued a timely warning and if the word that has gone out from police headquarters may be taken at its face value, developments may be expected.

Several of the city pastors are away on their vacations, so that the restrictions do not affect so many congregations as might have been the case had the quarantine been established a month ago or a month later.

GIRLS WHO DISAPPEAR.

Tragedy of the Thousands That Sink Into Oblivion Yearly.

Police statistics of New York city show that at least two girls disappear from home every day in the year.

They vanish into oblivion. Soon they are forgotten, but the heartache of the mother left behind is never stilled. It will ache on through the remaining days of her life.

And what becomes of the girls who disappear?

That is a problem that we will not attempt to solve. We only know that they are swept away by the great whirlpool of life.

The federal statistics furnished by the bureau of vital statistics show that 50,000 persons disappear each year. They vanish into oblivion. A greater proportion of these are young girls. The men who disappear turn up sooner or later in most cases, but the girls, as a rule, are forever lost. Having cut away from their social ties, having burned their bridges behind them, these disappearing girls abandon usually all thought or hope of returning and become isolated members of the social colony of which they once were members. They prefer to struggle on as best they can.

It is one of life's tragedies.—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

"Oh, Effie, your new gown and hat are stunning!"
"Yes, Alfred hasn't recovered yet from the shock the bill gave him."—Exchange.

A Good Rule.

Our deeds determine us as much as we determine our deeds.—George Eliot

THE BANK OF ENGLAND.

It is a Private Company, but Acts as the Nation's Banker.

The Bank of England is not, as most people think, a government institution. It is a private company, but reaps a good profit by acting as the nation's banker. The remuneration paid to the Bank of England for the management of the national debt was fixed in 1906 as a yearly sum of the rate of £325 per million pounds and at the rate of £100 for every million pounds above this amount.

Before any of the government money that goes into the Bank of England can be spent a certain procedure has to be followed. First of all an order signed by the king and countersigned by two lords of the treasury has to be forwarded to the comptroller and auditor general of the exchequer and audit department. Then the comptroller has an order to the treasury authorizing the Bank of England to debit the exchequer account and credit the account of the promaster general, who makes all payments on behalf of the various departments.

Afterward the comptroller scrutinizes all the accounts paid to see that the money has been spent in accordance with the wishes of parliament.—Westminster Gazette.

How He Cleared Himself.

While passing along a busy street in Dublin a lady was relieved of her hand bag, and Sandy was arrested on suspicion of having snatched it. He was placed among a group of men, and the lady was asked to single out the culprit. She passed down the line till she came to Sandy.

"Officer," she said, "I think that is the man, although I did not see his face, but his clothes appear to be similar." "The lady's wrong, sir. I was wearing a different suit. Can I go now, sir?" said Sandy.
